Dear Party,

I think that the Microsoft Settlement is not enough. I work in a non-profit organisation providing refurbished old computers to the poor and disabled. Microsoft has prohibited us from refurbishing old computers with Windows 95 on them. While this operating system is old and unsupported by Microsoft anymore, they still require us to obtain a license to "give away" these donated computers.

I wish that the settlement will consider organisations like ours because we are not breaking hurting anyone but Microsoft is still screwing us up. Those computers were donated to us for free and we simply format the computers, install the old Windows 95 or Windows 3.1 with slower computers, and donate them to new immigrants, poor families, disabled people and orphan homes. We make no money and all of our helpers are doing voluntary work.

Yours Faithfully,
Daniel
